How would you know if the website you are doing transaction with is secure?

- 2 things to look for
 - Look at the web address, if it starts with an "https" it is safe.
 - Secure web pages will have this padlock icon on their page

Security is relative. Picture this

- Have you ever thought of what happens when you are in a restaurant and you give your credit card to the server to pay your bills? It takes several minutes before your credit card is returned to you. During those few minutes, what do you think happened? OR
- What about that person you are talking to over the phone and you are reciting your credit card number to complete your order from a catalogue or a television advertisement? OR
- Faxing your contact and credit card number to someone? Do you know who sees those fax forms? Would they be lying around the fax machine where several people go to get faxes?

Who uses the Internet and why?

- 85% of online Canadians connect to the Internet using a high speed connection
- Only 15% of online Canadians use dial-up
- 67% of Canadians purchased online
- 51% of Canadians 60 and older use the internet
